

Safe at Home West Virginia

Helping youth lead safe, healthy and successful lives within their home communities.

What is Wraparound?

Safe at Home West Virginia uses “wraparound,” a process that supports families by bringing a group of people together as a team for planning and delivering supportive services. The goal is to build on family strengths and address critical unmet needs to keep families together. Wraparound is based on the belief that youth make progress when the family and community are involved in their care and treatment.

Wraparound is designed to help groups of people involved in a family’s life work together to support the family and their child who is returning from, or at risk of being sent to, an out-of-home placement in order to receive services.

Youth considered for Safe at Home West Virginia wraparound services must:

- Have an open case with the child welfare system;
- Be 12 to 17 years old; and
- Be at risk for out-of-home placement.

How to make a referral:

If you know a youth who might qualify for Safe at Home West Virginia wraparound services, please contact your local West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources (DHHR) office. A listing of county offices is available at dhr.wv.gov.
